

Philosophy of Education

6000

A democratic society is dependent on the educational attainment of its individual members; therefore, it is important that De Anza and Foothill, as community colleges, offer educational opportunity to all members of the community who demonstrate that they are capable of profiting from such opportunity.

The Colleges, relying on the Academic Senate and with the full involvement of the Associated Students and the administration, shall develop curriculum and strict academic standards which will challenge all students to strive to their highest capacities.
