Workshop	Location	Presenter(s)
Online Student Achievement Gaps: Challenges and	MLC 108	Presenter:
Solutions - Hispanic, Pacific Islander and African-		- Judy Baker, Dean of Foothill Global
American students and economically disadvantaged		Access students who are enrolled in online classes tend to perform more poorly and drop out at higher rates than other students. Discuss the reasons for these achievement gaps. And, explore specific ways that faculty and administrators can help to close the gap.
Understanding Classification – This workshop will	MLC 109	Presenters:
outline what constitutes a reclassification, what factors are		- The Hay Group involved, how the evaluation system works, and when you should apply for a reclassification. Attendees will leave knowing the three main factors of classification and how that determines their level and title.
Meeting Students Where They Are: Strengthening	MLC 110	Presenters:
Faculty Capacity to Meet the Needs of Developmental		- Jennifer Myhre, Co-Chair,
Level Students in General Education Courses - This		Developmental and Readiness Education workshop invites faculty who teach general education		Taskforce, De Anza College courses to come develop their skills in meeting our		- Members of the Developmental and students where they are. Over three-quarters of our		Readiness Education Taskforce at De students test in to developmental levels of math and		Anza College English. For all of us, skills like reading or writing are not outside the bounds of what we do in our discipline, they are core activities of the discipline. As such, developing students' skills in these areas is a central part of teaching our general education courses. Come learn strategies for developing analytical, reading, writing and numeracy skills for students in your content-area classes.
Civic Capacity for Equity and Social Justice - In this	MLC 111	Presenter: interactive workshop, we will discuss ways staff and		- Cynthia Kaufman, Director, Institute of faculty participants can help students develop the		Community and Civic Engagement, De knowledge, skills, and motivation to be agents of change in		Anza College order to advocate for themselves and for change in their communities and beyond.
Know the Story – An interactive workshop where	MLC 112	Presenters:
participants will share their stories and learn to		- Rene Anderson-Watkins, Adjunct incorporate students' unique stories in classroom		Faculty, English Department, De Anza pedagogy and student services. Participants will have an		College opportunity to examine the equity-minded frame with		- Mayra E. Cruz, Child Development & emphasis on classroom, college services, and institutional		Education Department, De Anza College

How to Reduce Stereotype Threat Effects in Your	MLC 113	Presenter:
Classroom - Some students in our classrooms face		- Ben Stefonik, Psychology Instructor, stereotypes alleging their intellectual inferiority, which		Foothill College can lead to impaired performance in testing situations, an effect known as stereotype threat (ST). Encouragingly, there are concrete things you can do to mitigate this threat. This workshop will explore research on ST and how you can reduce stereotype threat effects in your classroom.
Faculty and Staff Media Training - Participants will learn	MLC 102	Presenters:
what do when a reporter calls, how to prepare for a		- Andrea Hanstein, Director of Marketing successful interview, how to develop concise and		& Public Relations, Foothill College compelling messages, and how to help ensure that news		- Becky Bartindale, Coordinator, District media convey those messages. Faculty and staff who		Communications interact - or anticipate interacting - on a regular basis with news media are especially encouraged to attend.
Campus Safety - A New Paradigm - Response to new	MLC 103	Presenters:
threats on college campuses have required a change in		- Ron Levine, Chief of District Police tactics over the past several years. Best practices have		- Danny Acosta, Assistant Chief of District evolved and been adopted by a variety of organizations.		Police
The Santa Clara County Police Chiefs' Association, in		- Michele Lebleu-Burns, Dean of Student association with the Santa Clara County Board of		Development, De Anza College Education, have adopted "Run, Hide, Defend" as the		- Pat Hyland, Dean of Student Affairs, recommended response to an "active assailant" incident.		Foothill College Additionally, the use of Behavioral Assessment Teams on		o di campuses have increased the safety of the entire college community. Our session will provide an overview of the new techniques, safety suggestions, and resources available to the FHDA community.
Faculty Perspective: The Changing Community College	MLC 105	Presenters:
Environment - The recent years of economic recession		- The Faculty Association (FA) and the FA have changed the community college environment. Budget		Political Action Committee cuts and declining enrollment, pension reform and increasing contributions, student success and expanding (often bewildering) accreditation demands – these are some of the challenges facing community college faculty today. This workshop will examine these issues, seek faculty input, and provide some answers.
